HIS BLOOD RAN COLD. Society Man's Had Break in Sending

Lady a Gift. St. Louis Republic. A story is now going the rounds in St. Louis society circles which, having or its here a well known young society for its here a well known young society man, who is rather noted for his fastidiousness and immaculate deportment, illustrates in the most breathless manner the dangers for making an occasional "bad break" that surround oven the ultra careful. The gentleman in question was for the time being smitten on one of the prettiestyoung "rossbudds" on West Pine street, and was paying her many delicate little attentions in the most fascinating manner possible to a trained beau. One afternoon recently—after spending an especially bewildering and tender evening at the young lady's home the night before—the gentleman left his desk (he is the cashier of one of the largest local wholesale dry goods houses) and strolling into a neighboring florial's selected a large box of beautiful cut-flowers which he ordered sent to his office, as he wished to write a "fetching" note to accompany the tribute. Having made this purchase his thoughts then, reverted to himself, and he dropped into a haberdasher's and purchased, some dainty additions to his stock of underwear, which package was also sent to his store. Then he returned to the desk, indien a most killing epistle, "aweets to the sweet," "appropriate offering to one so fresh and fair," etc., rang for a messenger, laid the note in its addressed envelope upon a package by his side, and, being very busy, waved toward it when the boy come, and turned again to his work.

Two minutes later his blood ran cold in his veins with horror when he found in the wing with horror when he found in his veins with horror when he found in the wing with horror when he found in his veins with horror when he found in the wing with horror when he found in the wing with horror when he found in his veins with horror when he found in the wing with horror when he found in his veins with horror when he found in the wing with nan, who is rather noted for his fastidi-being very busy, waved toward it when the boy come, and turned again to his work.

Two minutes later his blood ran cold in his veins with horror when he found that the messenger had departed with the gent's underwear and the "sweets to the sweet" note. There was only one thing to be done. Hastily grasping the box of flowers he rushed out, sprang into a cab and was driven post-haste to the corner of the streetout nearest the lady's residence. It was a fighting chance, and he counted on the proverbial slowness of messenger boys in taking it. His promptness saved him. The boy strolled along leisurely a few minutes later, the almost fated package of underclothing was recovered, the flowers substituted, and an immortal joke partially spoiled. But the story of the wild drive out West Pine street is being told with great gusto.

CLING TO YOUR COINSET.

Its Very Antiquity is an Argament in Its Favor.

Lillian Levis.

To any lady, old or young, who may read this article I want to say: Let the men talk; let the lecturers advise you to leave off your corsets—don't you do it. These people who talk were born in this century. But corset wearing is older than the Christian religion, and older than thousands of years ago, with the very same object in view as the girl of 1850 wears here—to keep the stomach warm, to hold up the bust, and to have a support on which to drape and hang her Grecian draperies. These lectures and teachers and preachers of hygiene began at the wrong end. The fundamental fault they ignore. It is this: You do not stand right; you let the abdomen lead, the bust recede. This should be reversed. I'm not speaking ignorantly or unthinkingly. Look around you. Get a profile view of half your fends—than alondol. A circular describing these what will fit you. If you stood unright on your feet, head erect, bust forward, abdomen receding, they'd make a corset to fit that position. They will make what will fit you. If you stood unright on your feet, head erect, bust forward, abdomen receding, they'd make a corset to fit that position. They will make what we sell. When you learn to stand right you will think right, do right and be right. The corset of thousands of years ago was just like the bands mothers warp round the bodies of their little newborn bables, only longer and stouter. The antiquity of the corse tongth to work wards what waring panalations it is not object to a woman wearing panalations it is not object to a woman wearing panalations it is not object to a woman wearing panalations is not ob

At a recent fashionable gathering at Music Hall I was so struck by the novel beauty of the front of a jacket-waist wormby a lady friend of mine that I called on her the next day for a closer inspection of the garment. I was surprised when she informed me that she had it no longer. It was a makeshift for that evening of hand&erchiefs only. Three of them were pinned together, each folded again. The front parts which cross each other give the whole the appearance of an elaborate chimisette. A nother combination of headlership for the same nursities of headlersh ed to a triangle, and then folded again. The front parts which cross each other give the whole the appearance of an elaborate chimisette. Another combination of handkerchiefs for the same purpose is in the directoire style. THE SOCIETY DINNER.

Having Got Too Tedious, It Has Been Cut Down to Two Hours.

Christian Union.

The burden of dining for a period of three to five hours has at last brought its own relief, and dinners are shortened in that centre of dinner-giving—Washington. At the Executive Mansion and at the home of the vice-President the official dinners have been shortened to two hours. This has met with decided approval from nearly all the society people, but here and there there is a protest that the real object of a dinner is conversation, and that the hasto necessary to meet the new moyement in the serving destroys all social intercourse and confinesone's attention to his plates. The movers in the reform—for so its viewed by many—claim that the fewer courses served make the objection invalid.

are household words all over Europe. Now that the manufacturers are drawing the attention of the American public to this first and, ever since its invention, the best of all cocoas, it will soon be appreciated here as well as elsewhere all over the world. All that the manufacturers request is simply one trial or still better a comparative test with whatever other cocoa it may be; then Van Houren's Cocoa itself will convince every one of its great superiority in strength, flavor and economy.

The English high-class paper Health says: "None of the numerous cocoas have as yet equalled this inventor's in solubility, agreeable taste and nutritive qualities." It is a strengthener of the nerves, and a refreshing beverage.—Superior to tea and coffee and having no injurious effects. Ask for Van Houten's and take no other.
